TRAFFIC SIGNS ARE SMASHED BY DRIVERS

CITY ANXIOUS FOR OVERHEAD BRIDGES SOON

Attorney Pomerene Urges Railroad Company Not To Delay The Matter

Hope For Return Of Ordinance In Time For Action By Council Monday

That the bridges over the Pennsy tracks at Vine and Pine streets should be erected and ready for use by January 1, was the opinion of several prominent men who are interested and in close touch with the movement to secure this needed improvement.

It will be remembered that council prepared the ordinance and this was submitted to the Pennsylvania railroad through its attorney, F. E. Pomerene, of this city. This ordinance was sent to the railroad company last week and Wednesday a second letter in reference to the matter was sent to the company by Mr. Pomerene in which it was urged that no delay be caused by the company.

Hope For Action

It is hoped that the ordinance will be returned by the company in time for council to take up the matter at the meeting Monday night and draw up the application to be presented to the railroad commission at Columbus so that immediate action may be secured.

May Start Soon

According to the strict letter of the law, no definite work toward the erection of the bridges can be commenced until thirty days shall have elapsed from the passing of the ordinance in council. In actual practice, however, this provision is sometimes, and, if other things do not interfere in this case will be, set aside.

The promise of bad weather and the improbability of the continuance of moderate temperatures, makes it imperative that work on the foundation bases which are to be of concrete be commenced as soon as possible.

Bad Traffic Conditions Exist In City, Many Citizens Claim

CAREFUL DRIVERS FEAR COLLISIONS

One Autoist Suggests Smaller Signs For Principal Street Intersections

The general laxity on the part of the officials to prosecute offenders of the traffic ordinances and almost criminal carelessness on part of many drivers have resulted in the destruction of many of the traffic signs which were placed at the center of the intersections of the more prominent business streets and at points where traffic is heavy, according to a number of citizens who were interviewed Friday by The Tribune.

Chief Kept Busy.

In only the downtown or more centrally located parts of the city are these signs now standing and in most places where they were originally placed may be found the broken fragments of the standards. Chief Mayol, who placed the standards early in the summer, has found it necessary to make a trip over the city with a buggy practically six times a week to repair and replace the signs which had been destroyed or broken.

Afraid To Drive.

One of the most prominent business men in the city said Friday in speaking of the carelessness of the different drivers: "I am afraid each time I take my car out lest I be run down at some street corner. There is too much recklessness and fast driving. While I do not believe that anyone intentionally strikes or destroys the signs, there is not enough careful driving at the street intersections. I am in favor of keeping up the traffic signs and would favor traffic signs much the same as the bases now in use, each about eighteen inches in circumference and six inches in height and with no upright standard. If a car should strike this no great damage would be done and it could not be moved out of place. All in the city would know its purpose."

AUTO GOES OVER BANK

Millersburg Attorney Has Thrilling Experience On Denman Drive

Charles R. Carey, Millersburg attorney, had a thrilling experience Thursday night about nine o'clock, when in attempting to pass one of the Spreng [illegible] on what is known as the Denman drive along the Warsaw road, his car was driven too near the edge of the road and slipped over the embankment.

It was necessary to abandon the car until morning, when workmen from the Crothers garage were summoned to the scene and by means of block and tackle pulled the machine upon the road again. It is said that the taxicab had but one light in front and that this confused Mr. Carey causing him to pull over too far. No one was injured and but little damage done to the car.

"Two Story" Building Is Unnoticed

There is one "two story" building on Main street which is not noticed by a majority of those who pass along the thoroughfare.

It is located at the Pennsy railroad crossing and until a short time ago only one of the "floors" was in use. The "second story" is used by the Pennsy gate tender the floor of this "story" being several feet above the street level. Recently a door was cut in the side of the shanty below the floor and the lower compartment is now used for storing stocks by railroad employes.

Allies May Add China To Entente

Washington, Nov. 19.—Great Britain, France and Russia have united in an effort to add China to the entente alliance in order to prevent possible friction in the future between Japan and China and to preserve the peace of the Far East. If China agrees to the plan, military participation in the present war is not expected.

Negotiations thus far are in a conversational stage at Peking with no indications as to China's attitude. Although the United States is being kept informed, its diplomatic representatives at Peking and European capitals are refraining from participation.

This sensational turn in Far Eastern affairs on the eve of the proposed change in China from a republic to a monarchy has been confidentially [illegible] the [illegible] during the last [illegible] today.

REVENUE MEN INVESTIGATING BOOTLEGGING AT NEWCOMERS

Warrants Issued For Three Arrests—Two Leave For Parts Unknown

OFFICERS RETURN TO THE VILLAGE

Roy Sondles Pleads Not Guilty To Charge—Plans To Fight The Case

Newcomerstown, Nov. 19.—The revenue officers from Columbus, who were here some time ago investigating alleged bootlegging cases, are here again this week, on the same cases. They have issued warrants for the arrests of Roy Sondles, George and William Crawford. Sondles was arrested by Marshal Dayton, and is out on bail. He will stand trial and has retained Attorney Green, of New Philadelphia, to fight the case.

George and William Crawford fled to parts unknown, when they learned of the warrants being issued for their arrest and as yet have not been located.

Weighing of Test Corn Is Postponed

Because of the disagreeable weather Friday, the husking of the corn from the experiment plots on the Shaw-Speckman farm near Warsaw was postponed until next Tuesday at one o'clock. Unless unforseen weather conditions should prevent husking and weighing of the corn will be held that afternoon and the result announced in the Tribune Wednesday morning.

No Cheering Lights; Too Much Dampness

Considerable trouble was experienced by the electric light company last night in locating the source of the trouble in the arc light circuit which serves South Fifth, South Sixth, South Lawn and South Seventh streets. It was thought that the trouble was due to the wet stormy weather. The street lamps were out as the result of the trouble and the streets [illegible] in darkness.

HOPE FOR CITY Y. M. C. A IS STILL ENTERTAINED

SHOE SOLE CUT BY FAST TRAIN

Woman Continues On Her Way After Missing Death By Less Than An Inch

After coming so near to being run down by Pennsylvania passenger train No. 7, at the Adams Mills crossing that the sole of her shoe was torn, Mrs. Harvey Vickers, of Adams Mills, got up, crossed the tracks over to the Wheeling and Lake Erie platform a short distance beyond and boarded the morning Wheeling train for Coshocton just as she had intended to do before the accident which so nearly cost her her life, occurred. She came on to Coshocton and spent Friday and Friday night with her sister, Mrs. William Huff, of South Seventh street.

Presence Of Mind.

Mrs. Vickers was on her way to the Wheeling train and was about to cross the Pennsylvania

Friday Was Not A Balmy Spring Day

The most disagreeable day of the fall.

Coshocton people will not deny that Friday fitted the above description.

A cold rain with a little dash of sleet and snow, made more penetrating by heavy gusts of wind made the fireside a mighty desirable place and few ventured forth who could invent an excuse for staying inside.

Friday was similar to the first few days of winter and according to weather reports, some colder weather is expected within the next few days.

Rain brought the rivers up Friday although the rise is not and will not be sufficient to flood the low lands or do any damage to property. The rivers had been at their lowest stages of the year previous to Thursday.

"Let 'Er Go" Says Poet; Life Ends

Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 19.—Joe Hillstrom was shot through the heart in the state prison yard by a firing squad early today for the murder of J. G. Morrison and Morrison's son on Jan. 11, 1914.

"Fire! Let 'er go!" were Hillstrom's last words. He shrieked them a moment before the bullets ended his life.

Hillstrom was known as the poet of the Industrial Workers of the World.

Hillstrom died without revealing the name of a woman at whose house he said he was at the time the murders took place.

Temple Is Stricken

Frank Temple, aged 21, residing at Sixteenth street and Hay avenue and employed at the American Art Works, was stricken by acute appendicitis late last evening and rushed to the hospital in Hinds's ambulance. He was immediately operated upon by Drs. McClain, Marshall and Carr.

Attorney C. E. Pomerene was absent from the city Friday on business.

Committee In Charge Of Project Still Optimistic Despite Delay

MAY BE TAKEN UP AGAIN IN SPRING

Financial Conditions Blamed —$25,000 Must Be Raised By Subscription

What has become of the Y. M. C. A. project?

This is a question which has come to the minds of many of Coshocton's citizens recently and all are wondering what has happened to the movement which gained such wide spread enthusiasm following the Hamilton tabernacle meetings last spring.

At that time a number of meetings were held all of which were well and enthusiastically attended and for a time it looked as though the city were to have a regular Y. M. C. A., with a well equipped building and everything necessary to make the project a success.

George M. Gray was appointed temporary chairman of the movement and he in turn appointed C. B. Hunt, C. F. Barnes, T. L. Montgomery, F. E. Pomerene and R. H. Mills, a committee to see what could be done with the project.

Not A "Dead One."

When members of this committee were interviewed concerning the project Friday, they all expressed practically the same opinion saying that the movement was by no means a dead one but was only lying dormant until a more opportune time. It was figured that $25,000 would be the very least required to organize the association and place it on a basis where it could be continued without constant fear of going under from year to year. When it came to having this amount subscribed the members of the committee found very little encouragement among those solicited and this together with a few other unfavorable features led them to believe that it would be better to abandon the project for the present.

Whether it will be revived the coming spring or allowed to wait longer, the committee members were not prepared to say.

Inspector Pays Visit To School

F. C. Landsittel, of Athens, inspector of normal schools, visited the West Lafayette Normal school Friday together with County Superintendent of Schools, L. C. Shaw, of Warsaw, and made the inspection of the work as required by the state department. The report of the inspector will be turned in to the state authorities and will be made public in about a week.

Storm Hits Windy City

Chicago, Nov. 19.—While a snow storm that approached the proportions of a blizzard swept Chicago today the temperature was performing a tumbling act. Between the hours of 5 and 7 a. m. the mercury dropped from 45 degrees to 33 and Weather Forecaster Cox predicted it would drop to 20 degrees before tonight. Traffic in the city was delayed only slightly by the storm.

MEMBERSHIP IS HEAD'D TOWARD TWOFIFTY MARK

Fifty-seven Names Added To List Of Charter Members By Committee

Desired Number Now 300—Banquet Date To Be Announced In Short Time

Up until the close of solicitations Friday evening 215 names had been secured as charter members of the Coshocton's Chamber of Commerce, fifty-seven of these having been added through the efforts of the committee: O. M. Dilts, J. M. McKeown and G. Fred Cantwell, during the last two days. It is believed the desired number, 300, can be secured during the early part of the coming week. While the committee is making every effort to see everyone it will be practically impossible not to miss some and all who are interested in the success of the organization are asked to assist the committee by calling any one of them and giving their names. The membership is by no means limited to citizens of Coshocton but the organization hopes to have among its members all public spirited farmers and country merchants in the county. The object of the organization is first of all to boost Coshocton and it is hoped eventually that the financial condition will be such that a paid secretary can be secured who can devote all his time to the interests of the organization in investigating and inviting new industries to come to Coshocton and can look after civic improvements of all natures.

Arrange Banquet

A number of good locations for headquarters are under consideration but nothing definite will be decided upon until after the big boosters' banquet which is being planned for and at which time the Chamber of Commerce will be formally organized and officers elected. ## A MADAGASCAR BANQUET.

Where the Riot of Food Vied With the Riot of Tumult.

The longest and noisiest dinner that James Sibree, Jr., the author of "A Naturalist in Madagascar," ever attended was given by the governor of a town called Ankarana. About a score of officers were at the table and seven ladies. After a long grace by the pastor, dinner was brought in and consisted of the following courses.

First, curry; second, goose; third, pigeons and waterfowl; fourth, chicken cutlets and poached eggs; fifth, beef sausages, sixth, boiled tongue, seventh, sardines, eighth, pig's trotters, ninth, fried bananas; tenth, pancakes, eleventh, manioc, twelfth, dried bananas, and lastly, says Mr. Sibree, when I thought everything must have been served, came haunches of roast beef.

There was a big drum just outside on the veranda, as well as two small ones, besides clarinets and fifes, and these were in full play almost all the time. Then the room was filled by a crowds of servants and aids-de-camp, and the shouting of every one from the governor down, was deafening. The old [illegible] man directed everything and every one. I was glad when I could take my leave, after two hours' sitting, but I was not to leave quietly. The governor took me by the hand and escorted me home, while the big drum was hammered at ahead of us all the way.—Youth's Companion.

The Pawned Watch

By EUNICE BLAKE

One morning a man entered a pawnshop in the town of Hurdsville and offered a good watch as security for a loan. The broker examined the watch, then looked up at the man who had brought it in. The latter, though fairly well dressed, had a troubled look in his eye.

"Whose initials are these?" asked the broker, referring to some letters engraved on the case.

"Oh, if you're going to hunt up my ancestors it'll take too much time," replied the man, and he reached for the watch. The broker surrendered it, and the man departed.

Now, it happened that the broker was in touch with the police and was giving them information as to suspected stolen goods offered at his shop. He telephoned the incident, describing the man, and a detective was put on his trail.

Let us go back three years.

Hiram Jenks, a bachelor with no relatives, one day called his clerk, Thomas Wentworth, into his private office and said:

"Tom, I have something important to say to you. When I first went into business I associated with me a man named Perkins. He speculated with funds belonging to the firm and sank money for me as well as himself. After a quarrel I put him out of the firm, and when we parted, giving me the ugliest look I ever received from a man, he said that he would get even with me some day. Since that day I have at times been fearful that he would keep his word. I suppose it is weak and foolish in me to brood over it, but I can't help it. At any rate, I wish to make provision in case anything happens. You will find a will in the safe leaving what little I have to you, and you can run this business just as I am running it now."

Jenks and Wentworth lived in rooms over the store. One morning the latter arose to find his employer murdered in his bed. Whatever valuables were in the room had been taken, leaving the impression that the murder had been committed for plunder. No clew to the murderer could be found, and when Wentworth presented a will in his favor for probate a suspicion was aroused that he had murdered the testator, who was still a young and healthy man, that he might enjoy the bequest in reality instead of in prospect. Up to this time no evidence whatever pointed to Wentworth, but now the police, who had been blamed for not hunting up the murderer, began to pick up threads and in time concocted a scheme to fix the murder upon him. It is astonishing how by constant digging and putting this and that together an apparently good case may be made against any accused person. Although this evidence against Wentworth rested on the flimsiest foundation, it was enough to set tongues wagging, and when the structure seemed to the state attorney to be complete the young man was arrested.

Wentworth was taken all aback at the accusation. He was incapable of doing anything to work up a case in his favor, but he had a sweetheart who, after the first shock, being satisfied of his innocence, went to work diligently for evidence to prove his innocence. Tom told her what his employer had said to him when at the time he informed him that he had made him his heir and his fears that the man who had asserted he would get even with him some day would make his words good. She began first to [illegible] something about Perkins from [illegible]. [illegible] his partner had separated. She finally located him one year [illegible] his time and by dint of following different leads kept on his track [illegible] time after the murder.

When the case came to trial the prosecution brought forth the evidence that had been adduced by the energetic police, who was relying on the political influences of the force in a coming election [illegible] testimony of neighbors [illegible] that no one entered or came out of the store between 10 p. m. and 7 a. m., that a voice believed to be Jenks' had been heard to cry, "You ungrateful villain!" and that Wentworth had been seen a few days before the murder to steal into the house with a bludgeon.

The defense took no trouble to refute any of these charges. The sweetheart of the accused, Miss Marion Thorndyke, was the only important witness on the other side, and her testimony was elicited by questions of counsel. He led her to state how she had hunted for Perkins, how she had finally got on his track and how she [illegible] not a week before the trial. Then he produced a gold watch bearing the initials "H. T. J.," and he proved by those who had seen it in Jenks' possession that it had belonged to him.

This evidence having been introduced, counsel proceeded to show how Miss Thorndyke had located Perkins and was watching him when he tried to pawn the watch. The notification to the police by the pawnbroker had been communicated to her, and Perkins had been arrested. At this point the attorney rested his case, and the jury acquitted the prisoner without leaving their seats.

At the trial of Perkins for the murder of Jenks, Wentworth, being now free, was a competent witness and told the story Jenks had told him of the quarrel between the partners and Perkins' threat. This, taken with his trying to pawn the watch, was sufficient evidence to convict him.

THE FATA MORGANA.

Conditions That Must Obtain to Allow of Its Production.

The fata morgana is a singular aerial phenomenon akin to the mirage. It is seen in many parts of the world, but most frequently and in greatest perfection at the strait of Messina, between Sicily and Italy. So many conditions must coincide, however, that even there it is of comparatively rare occurrence.

To allow of its production the sun must be at an angle of forty-five degrees with the water, both sky and sea must be calm and the tidal current sufficiently strong to cause the water in the center to rise higher than on the edges of the strait. When these conditions are fully met the observer on the heights of Calabria, looking toward Messina, will behold a series of rapidly changing pictures, sometimes of most exquisite beauty.

Castles, colonnades, successions of beautiful arches, palaces, cities, with houses and streets and church domes; mountains, forests, grottoes, will appear and vanish, to be succeeded perhaps by fleets of ships, sometimes placidly sailing over the deep, sometimes inverted, while a halo like a rainbow surrounds every image.

It is supposed that the images are due to the irregular refractive powers of the different layers of air above the sea, which magnify, repeat and distort the objects on the Sicilian shore beyond, but to the Italians these singular appearances are the castles of the Princess Morgana, and the view of them is supposed to bring good fortune to the beholder.

THAT "PREPAREDNESS" PROGRAM

It [illegible] Washington [illegible] the management of the federal [illegible] is to succeed in forcing congress to [illegible] dollars to spend between now and 1926.

The program [illegible] More than a billion of dollars are to be spent [illegible] giving us an army and navy. The New York World, [illegible] the official organ of the Wilson administration, says [illegible] a sufficient number of senators and representatives [illegible] announce that the [illegible] dollar program [illegible] with flying colors.

If [illegible] are to be allowed to dip as often [illegible] the pockets of the taxpayers [illegible] the next five—or fifty—years [illegible] it seems to us [illegible] the right of the taxpayers [illegible] answer.

In the first place [illegible] WHAT HAS BECOME OF THE TWO BILLION DOLLARS THIS COUNTRY HAS SPENT FOR AN ARMY AND NAVY IN THE LAST TWO DECADES?

If two billion dollars has not been sufficient to give us an army and navy, aren't [illegible] a little modest? Why don't they [illegible] two, or four, billion dollars within the next [illegible] have to build up an army and navy as quickly as [illegible] then let's get at it and have it over with; let's [illegible] this time for our money.

Anyway, what [illegible] billion dollars to a rich and comparatively [illegible] stacked up against the expenditures of [illegible] They have each spent that a couple of times [illegible] and statisticians in both countries [illegible] Germany and England [illegible]

[illegible] the American people from many different angles that the United States government, in the manufacture of battleships and of munitions of war, can make one dollar go approximately as far as the private contractors can two—and get better stuff to boot.

He has also intimated that if the federal government did take over the battleship building and the making of munitions that there would be far less talk about "upholding the honor of the flag" and "maintaining our national integrity" at Wall street banquets than there now is; that the number of our imaginary foes would dwindle and that the paid agents of the munitions trusts would not be nearly so conspicuous nor so patriotically loud-mouthed in the congressional lobbies as they have been in the past.

The truth of the matter about this "preparedness" business is that the people would not be nearly so skeptical about spending money for "national defense" if they thought any considerable part of the money went for actual defense. Bond issues for state road improvement and for county road improvement have been voted down times without number here in Ohio, not because our people do not believe in good roads, but because they have been convinced from long experience that when the money is voted only a small percentage of it ever finds its way into the actual building of roads.

Identically the same feeling prevails in the nation at large about the proposed appropriation by the federal government of $1,000,000,000 and more within five years for so-called "national defense." The people want to know who is to get the billion—national defense, or a lot of favored army contractors?

It has been proved by unimpeachable authorities that at least fifty cents out of every dollar that we have appropriated in the past for the army and navy has been grafted—or wasted—which amounts to the same thing; that the nations of Continental Europe, Germany, France, Switzerland and many others, have a better army, man for man, for one dollar expenditure than we have for three.

WHY? That's the question the people are asking. If we have no army and navy—and we know on the authority of all the advocates of "preparedness" that we haven't—WHAT HAS BECOME OF THE $2,000,000,000 AND MORE THE TAXPAYERS OF THE PRESENT GENERATION HAVE DUMPED INTO THE INSATIABLE MAW OF THE MILITARY MOLOCH?

IF WE HAVE GOT NEXT TO NOTHING FOR THE TWO BILLIONS WHAT MAY WE REASONABLY EXPECT TO GET FOR THE NEXT BILLION WE ARE INFORMED BY THE ORGAN OF THE WILSON ADMINISTRATION WE ARE EXPECTED TO COUGH UP AT THE NEXT SESSION OF CONGRESS WITHOUT EVER A CHANCE TO VOTE ON THE QUESTION OF WHETHER WE WANT TO SPEND THAT MUCH, OR ANYTHING, ON A EUROPEAN 1916 MODEL ARMY AND NAVY?

The people may as well know now, as they surely will before the five-year period is up, that they are the victims of the biggest bunco game ever launched in this country. The greed of the munition makers is whetted to the limit by the tremendous profits they are reaping from the European war orders and they are determined to extract these same profits from the pockets of their countrymen when the European war is over.

If congress votes this "preparedness" program through at the coming session, as the administration organ says it will, it should know that it is doing it without the slightest warrant from those who will have to foot the bill.

1,000,000 MEN KILLED IN MONTH

Rivers of Europe Empty Tides of Blood Into the Seas.

THIRTY DAYS OF SLAUGHTER

Germans Say They Have Endured Bloodiest Onslaughts In History With Their Forces Unshaken—Berlin Correspondent Asserts That Allies Lost Four Men to One In Loos Offensive.

The month just passed has been the bloodiest and most costly in the history of the world. The long promised and terrible French and British offensive is now ended. At the same time the fighting on all the other fronts reached a climax. The result has been that in thirty days the loss in killed and wounded has exceeded the terrifying figure of 1,000,000. There have been thirty days of slaughter on every front, so that many of the rivers of Europe are carrying crimson tides to the sea, writes a Berlin correspondent to the Chicago Daily News.

Fearful sacrifices netted the British and French nothing but slight gains of land—gains absolutely without significance—while the failure of the long threatened operations, with the enormous expenditure of stores and ammunition, by the allies leaves the Germans free to make greater efforts on the other fronts, especially in Servia where they are now hacking their way toward Constantinople.

Bodies Strew 2,000 Mile Front

It is possible that the British [illegible] another offensive [illegible] historians for all time [illegible] pages to the [illegible] of last October, in which the [illegible] with blood as [illegible] the [illegible] corpse strewn battle [illegible] more than 2,000 miles [illegible] census has yet been taken of the [illegible] and broken hearts here [illegible] in the homes of [illegible] enemies.

[illegible] terrible deluge of blood [illegible] western front. [illegible] the French army of millions [illegible] half of all the British [illegible] part of the Belgian army [illegible] into the assault. It [illegible] with four days [illegible] such thunders as [illegible] heard before. In [illegible] the Champagne the British [illegible] French surged over the [illegible] inches in the face of [illegible] Even the British [illegible] foolhardy than brave [illegible] the muzzles of the German machine guns which mowed down regiments.

Then the Second Attempt.

The enemies of Germany made a second attempt. Again days of artillery bombardment were followed by another furious attack, but weaker than the first and resulting in only slight gains. German counterattacks tore away as much land as was won at such a fearful price by the foe in the previous assault.

Then came the third offensive, the greatest of all. It was the last desperate and futile effort of the allies to shatter the German lines and break Germany's hold on Belgium and the richest provinces of France. The allies put their all into the attempt. The murderous artillery bombardment raged three days before the shells had torn the first line German trenches so that an attack could be made.

There was a hail of shells and shrapnel so great and so terrible that nothing could live in these first lines. But the German reserves were ready. When the assault finally came the German artillery tore great gaps in the ranks of the storming foe, which again chose the same ground.

Here and there the French and British got a foothold in the German trenches, but that was all. For days they fought, trying to extend their captures. But now the British as well as the French assaults are spasmodic or are mere local assaults without strategic value and unimportant in the general fighting.

The French in the Champagne, near Tahure, have been able to hold less than eighteen miles of new frontage, with a depth of three miles. The Germans have already recaptured more than one-half the lost ground and are now stronger than at first. The dead, wounded and prisoners in this offensive of thirty days is estimated at about 100,000.

The Germans assert that their losses were less than one-fourth as large as those of their enemies. This German report is probably fairly accurate, because of the reckless daring of their assailants, who swept against the Germans in massed lines. I have talked with German officers who stood near the machine guns and saw them mow down thousands in the futile assaults. When the complete story is told of this offensive on the west front no other tale in history will be so deluged with blood.

But this was only a fragment of the month's bloody work. It must also be remembered that on the west front Germany stood alone against three foes, while fighting against heavy odds on other fronts.

BRIGHTER CHILDREN

Children are probably brighter to-day than a generation ago—but are they stronger? That's a grave question. So many pinched faces, dulled eyes and languid feelings make us wonder if they will ever grow into robust, healthy men and women.

If your children catch colds easily, are tired when rising, lack healthy color, or find studies difficult, give them Scott's Emulsion for one month to enrich their blood and restore the body-forces to healthy action.

Scott's Emulsion is used in private schools. It is not a "patent medicine", simply a highly concentrated oil-food, without alcohol or harmful drugs. It cannot harm; it improves blood; it benefits lungs and strengthens the system. Your druggist has it—refuse substitutes.

Here's Coshocton testimony.
Verify it if you wish.

A. J. Shepler, photographer, 428 Main St., Coshocton, says: "My kidneys bothered me a good deal and I had pains through my back. The kidney action was irregular and the kidney secretions contained sediment. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Siegrist & Williams' Drug Store, gave me great relief."

The above statement was given Nov. 2, 1911, and on Sept. 10, 1914, Mr. Shepler said: "I still think most highly of Doan's Kidney Pills and recommend them to anyone suffering from kidney trouble. Since giving my former endorsement I have overworked and have had several attacks of kidney trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills have always relieved me."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Shepler has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Game of Quintain.

The game of quintain survives only in the village of Offham Green, in Kent, England. It is so named from an instrument used in tilting on horseback with the lance. It consisted of an upright post, surmounted by a crossbar turning on a pivot, which had at one end a flat board and at the other a bag of sand. The object of the tilter was to strike the board at such a rate of speed that he would be past and out of the way before the bag of sand as it whirled round could hit him in the back.

THEATRES

"ETERNAL CITY" BEAUTY FILM, HAS WONDERFUL WOMAN STAR.

Evening Mail, N. Y. C.

The two features that seem likely to be most talked about in the screen version of "The Eternal City," at the Astor Theatre, are the beauty of the scenes taken in Rome, both exterior and interior, and the surprisingly fine acting of Pauline Frederick as the much-harrassed Donna Roma.

Whatever influence the film promoters may have brought to bear it was enough to gain entrance for their directors and their actors into some of the most attractive rooms and gardens in the ancient city, and while it is a mystery just how the mass meeting in the Coliseum and the marches of the mobs and soldiers to and from it, sometimes suggest daylight, again twilight and occasionally dark night itself, the audiences are forced to admit that the effects gained are pictorially impressive.

Probably no one expected Miss Frederick to fail in this, her first experience as a picture star, but it seems equally to the doubted that any one expected her to prove so unusually clever in the work. Some of her early scenes in "The Eternal City" are more effective in emotional value than many of her performances have been on the legitimate stage. At the Mystic Theatre Thursday, Thanksgiving Day.

The weather affects man in more ways, it appears, than many suspect.
